

Your Forest. Managed.

July 30, 2008

The Florida Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services, Division of Forestry, established this website to inform private forestland owners with small to large acreages, as well as citizens about the importance of forests and forest management. This site contains information and resources to assist landowners in sustainable management of their forest lands, such as information about cost-sharing and education programs, pest and disease control, healthy harvest and planting practices, and many other useful topics. The site also provides information about how to minimize the impact of hurricanes to forests.
