

Global ReLeaf Grant

November 13, 2008

American Forests is looking for quality tree-planting projects to fund through the Global ReLeaf Forests Ecosystem Restoration program. They are particularly interested in partnering with private and public sector organizations and agencies to plant trees and improve the environment in projects that would otherwise not be feasible. The area to be planted with trees needs to be 20 acres or larger, or have the potential to be more than 20 acres. Also, the forest ecosystem being restored has to have been damaged by wildfire, hurricanes, tornadoes, insects, diseases, misguided treatment by humans, or other causes. The deadlines to submit the application are January 15 and July 1.

The application, other criteria and FAQ's can be found at:

http://www.americanforests.org/global\_releaf/grants/index.php