

May 21, 2010

TreeFolks Live in Texas

For over twenty years an Austin-based nonprofit called TreeFolks, Inc. has been educating and partnering with communities in Central Texas to grow their urban forest. The organization is responsible for the planting of thousands of trees each year through their sponsored programs, including one called Neighborwoods.

Neighborwoods encourages Central Texas communities to plant trees by identifying favorable planting locations and providing trees for residents who choose to participate in the program. The residents are then responsible for planting and maintaining their new trees—making the experience rewarding and beneficial for both property owners and their community.

View an instructional video on the Neighborwoods program at: www.isatexas.com/Members/Videos.htm

Learn more about TreeFolks, Inc. at their website: www.treefolks.org